

CogAT – Cognitive Abilities Test – Form 6/Level A

The CogAT is a group- administered ability test that measures developed abilities that are influenced by both in-school and out-of-school experiences. The CogAT is a multiple-choice nationally standardized assessment of student knowledge that provides a common measure of student learning and achievement. The purpose of the CogAT is to provide educators with information that will assist them in evaluating the academic strengths and weaknesses of their students. This information also assists in guiding and informing instructional programming. The CogAT is a norm-referenced test, which means that a student's score is compared with thousands of other students who take the test at the same time of the year. Therefore, no student passes or fails this assessment.

The CogAT is administered to all third grade students in October of each school year. The CogAT consists of three batteries: Verbal, Quantitative, and Nonverbal. The CogAT is a timed test that requires a separate answer document.

The Verbal Battery assesses Verbal Classification, Sentence Completion, and Verbal Analogies. The tests on the Verbal Battery appraise verbal inductive and deductive reasoning skills, as well as flexibility, fluency, and adaptability in working with verbal materials and solving verbal problems. Successful performance on these tests requires that students have a variety of verbal strategies that they can use effectively. This cluster of reasoning abilities plays an important role in developing skills in reading comprehension, critical thinking, writing, and other verbal learning tasks.

The Equation Building test also appraises the ability to organize structure, and give meaning to an unordered set of numerals and mathematical symbols. Successful performance on these tests requires that students have a variety of strategies for working with quantitative materials. The reasoning skills appraised by this battery are significantly related to problem solving not only in mathematics but also in other disciplines.
