

Why No Credit Check Cell Phone Service Makes Sense Regardless Of Your Credit History

Prepaid cell phone service used to be for people with bad credit who were unable to qualify for the regular "post paid" accounts. Or people who had post paid accounts but because of non-payment ended up on the being on the prepaid cell phone providers "No Fly" list.

People who have bad credit get used to having to jump thru extra hoops to get the same services as their good credit counterparts and for years no credit check cell phone providers just provided a bare minimum service. You didn't get the great smart phones or in some cases they didn't even have a decent internet speed.

And getting a decent cell phone was just as hard as getting a decent service provider that provided even half the data as a regular program. But now there are lots of no credit check cell phone providers that not only have great service. But all the same kind of phones that the major carriers have.

Is financing available for new phones on these no credit check cell phone services

No, they don't finance these phones, so you have to pay for them upfront. But what's great about this is that most of these phones are unlocked. An unlocked phone is one that can be used on ANY network. Meaning you can switch from Sprint to Verizon for example without needing a new phone!

Choosing the right cell phone service provider

If you have bad credit, don't bother going with any other service except a prepaid, no contract cell phone service provider. If you go with a service that pulls credit, you will bring your credit score down further. They may approve you, but you will need a large security deposit and probably pay more for your service than someone with good credit.

So why bother? There are many prepaid providers that work w/ the big cell phone services as resellers that will give you access to services like Verizon or Sprint. But no credit check or security deposits.

Be careful of pay as you go cell phone service plans. I had a client with one and she was paying more than $80 a month and not really getting great service. Her download speed was so slow that you couldn't really stream video!

Sites like BadCreditResources.com work have experience in working with clients with bad credit and have sought out vendors that can provide top notch service without credit checks or hefty security deposits!
