the powerful sometimes dramatic impact their decisions have on people's lives Presented with sensitivity and compassion the information at the same time raises very fundamental questions that are both disturbing and conscience stirring Crisis of Conscience ,1968 In Search of Christian Freedom Raymond Franz,1991 Freedom is crucial to genuine Christianity How the erosion of Christian freedom began in the early centuries how it can and does occur today and the means for resisting the invasion of personal conscience and thought a sequel to Crisis of Conscience Discusses teachings of organizational loyalty door to door activity disfellowshipping blood and many others The Contemporary Review ,1899 Crisis in Conscience at Quasar John J. Rand,1971 Morality Joseph Stoutzenberger,2001 Morality An Invitation to Christian Living is divided into two parts consisting of 15 chapters The first section provides a foundation for Christian morality as it examines virtues conscience and sin The teachings of Scripture Jesus and the Church provide the basis for a moral decision making process which students are encouraged to use with the real life moral issues presented in the second section of the text Adolescents are encouraged to become persons of character and to aid in building communities where living morally is the norm

Crisis of Conscience John M. Haas,1996 Here eight outstanding scholars from the U S and Europe reflect upon the issues They are Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger Ralph McInerny Robert Spamann Servais Pinckaers Wojciech Giertych Ignacio Carrasco de Paula Carlo Cafarra and John M Haas Anyone interested in the advancement of human moral and spiritual values will welcome this clarifying book Theology After Freud Peter Homans,1970 Your analysis suffers from the hereditary weakness of virtue Freud once wrote to a colleague One has to become a bad fellow to transcend the rules without some such criminality there is no achievement Taking up the challenge this precedent breaking volume transcends the rules of contemporary theology and psychoanalysis bringing new insights new dimensions and new perspectives to the interplay between the two I shall neither accept the rules set by theology and psychology nor simply abrogate them theologian Peter Homans writes in his introduction My procedure is an attempt to press mere dialogue and comparative analysis to the point where something new emerges First criticizing theology's inadequate view of Freud the author moves to a psychological examination of theology based on a more generous interpretation of the Viennese physician's seminal ideas and theories Concerned with the implication of secularization for contemporary Protestant thought Homans next examines the existentialist theory of Niebuhr and Tillich radical theology and he contributions of such cultural critics as Norman O Brown Phillip Rieff and David Bakan And proceeding beyond these on his own the author persuasively argues the necessity for new paradigms of religious and psychological understanding More than a study in the psychology of religion the book is concerned with the psychology of theological constructs especially the doctrine of transcendence It is a challenging provocative and very necessary beginning of an intellectual quest for relevancy one that should become increasingly significant to ministers and analysts laymen and professionals friends and enemies in both camps Above all the author intends the book to provide a stimulus for thought to persons concerned with the fate of theology in an age given over to predominately psychological thinking those who although they cannot but affirm the psychological still sense that genuine meanings still reside in the theological Publisher Volition's Face Andrew Escobedo, 2017-04-30 Modern readers and writers find it natural to contrast the agency of realistic fictional characters to the constrained range of action typical of literary personifications Yet no commentator before the eighteenth century suggests that prosopopoeia signals a form of reduced agency Andrew Escobedo argues that premodern writers including Spenser Marlowe and Milton understood personification as a literary expression of will an essentially energetic figure that depicted passion or concept transforming into action As the will emerged as an isolatable faculty in the Christian Middle Ages it was seen not only as the instrument of human agency but also as perversely independent of other human capacities for example intellect and moral character Renaissance accounts of the will conceived of volition both as the means to self creation and the faculty by which we lose control of ourselves After offering a brief history of the will that isolates the distinctive features of the faculty in medieval and Renaissance thought Escobedo makes his case through an examination of several personified figures in Renaissance literature Conscience in the Tudor interludes Despair in Doctor Faustus and book I of The Faerie Queen Love in books III and IV of The Faerie Queen and Sin in Paradise Lost These examples demonstrate that literary personification did not amount to a dim reflection of realistic fictional character but rather that it provided a literary means to explore the numerous conundrums posed by the premodern notion of the human will This book will be of great interest to faculty and graduate students interested in medieval studies and Renaissance literature The Catholic Church and the Struggle for Zimbabwe Ian Linden, 1980 This book's central theme is about the ideological struggle within the Church between 1959 and 1979 under the impact of African nationalism It documents the critical role of the Rhodesian Justice and Peace Commission and describes the relationships among missionaries guerrillas and African political leaders and the accompanying propaganda battle
