“THE BEAKS OF FINCHES” LAB

INTRODUCTION

Environmental conditions act as selecting agents because they select organisms with the most beneficial traits to become the parents of the next generation. Within a species, individuals with variations that make them better adapted to their environment will survive and reproduce in greater numbers than those without such adaptations. Observations have shown that the offspring of better-adapted individuals inherit many of their parents' favorable variations.

Finches are small birds found in many locations throughout the world. Charles Darwin used the numerous finch species found on the Galapagos Islands as evidence of natural selection. The great variety of beak adaptations present on the Galapagos is thought to be due to the isolation of bird populations on the islands with different kinds and amounts of food. Seed-eating finches exhibit a great number of differences in beak shapes and sizes. During ongoing competition for resources, some finches are successful and become more numerous, while less successful finches decrease in number.

In this laboratory activity, you will work with different tools that will serve to model finch “beaks”. The seeds provided represent finch food on a particular island. You will compete with other “finch” species to see which “beak” is best adapted for obtaining a specific food.

— From Galapagos: A Natural History Guide

HYPOTHESIS:

1. Examine the different tools (“beaks”) and seeds provided. Predict which “beak” will be the most successful at picking up small seeds. Give the reasons for your choice.

2. Predict which “beak” will be the least successful at picking up small seeds. Give the reasons for your choice.

ROUND ONE: No Competition, Original Island

- When given the “Round One” signal, one member of your team should use the “beak” to pick up small seeds one at a time from the large dish and place them in the small dish. Repeat this for a total of four trials, two trials for each partner. A timekeeper will tell you when to start and stop each trial. Record your results in the “Round One: Feeding with No Competition” data table.

and genetic mechanisms that through modifications in developmental programmes were at the base of morphological innovations during evolution After the discovery of the broad conservation of gene content and regulatory networks in the animal kingdom as well as in plants Evo Devo is orienting towards the study of differences through experimental and functional approaches Given the wide range of species gene families and developmental processes considered a concerted effort is still required to shed light on the genetic cellular and molecular mechanisms involved in phenotypic evolution It is a particularly exciting time for this field of evolutionary developmental biology as the advent of novel imaging genome editing and sequencing technologies allows the study of almost any organism in ways that were unthinkable only a few years ago Therefore the aim of this Frontiers Research Topic is to gather an original collection of experimental approaches concepts and hypotheses reflecting the current diversity of the Evo Devo field We have organized the articles according to the mechanistic depth with which they tackle specific evolutionary issues Hence comparisons of expression patterns have been grouped in Chapter 1 changes in regulatory interactions and gene networks are presented in Chapter 2 while Chapter 3 focuses on the evolution of developmental processes and biological patterns
