Tickmarks

✓	No exceptions noted.
1	This sample was signed off by the AP Supervisor, Sally Miller, not the AP Specialist, Jane Smith. Per discussion with Jane, she was on vacation that week, so her supervisor Sally Miller performed this control. No exception noted.
2	The unit cost and total cost on the purchase order did not agree to the invoice. I noted that the vendor, Computers Inc. was located in Canada. When I converted the invoice price to US dollars, it matched the purchase order. See my calculation on the invoice sample and the attached print out of the CAD rate for the day of the invoice. No exceptions noted.

Conclusion

This control is operating effectively.

McDermott,Jonathan Paul Caulkins,1996 Electric utilities can reduce sulfur dioxide emissions through a variety of strategies such as adding scrubbers switching to low sulfur coal or shifting output between generating plants with different emissions The cost of achieving a given emission target can be minimized using a market for emission allowances as under the Clean Air Act Amendments of 1990 if firms with high abatement costs buy allowances while those with low abatement costs reduce emissions and sell allowances However public utility commissions regulate which costs can be passed to customers Previous theoretical work has analyzed effects of regulations on a utility s choice between permits and a single continuous abatement technology Here we consider three abatement technologies and the discrete choices among them Our numerical model uses market and engineering information on permit prices scrubber cost and sulfur removal efficiency alternative fuel costs and sulfur content plus generating plant costs and efficiency Using illustrative sets of parameters we find that regulatory rules could more than double the cost of sulfur dioxide compliance
