Studies in Short Fiction, 1994

The Railroad in American Fiction Grant Burns, 2015-01-28 Nothing better represented the early spirit of American expansion than the railroad. Dominant in daily life as well as in the popular imagination, the railroad appealed strongly to creative writers. For many years, fiction of railroad life and travel was plentiful and varied. As the nineteenth century receded, the railroad's allure faded as did railroad fiction. Today it is hard to sense what the railroad once meant to Americans. The fiction of the railroad, often by railroaders themselves, recaptures that sense and provides valuable insights on American cultural history. This extensively annotated bibliography lists and discusses in 956 entries novels and short stories from the 1840s to the present in which the railroad is important. Each entry includes plot and character description to help the reader make an informed decision on the source's merit. A detailed introduction discusses the history of railroad fiction and highlights common themes such as strikes, hoboes, and the roles of women and African Americans. Such writers of pure railroad fiction as Harry Bedwell, Frank Packard, and Cy Warman are well represented along with such literary artists as Mark Twain, Thomas Wolfe, Flannery O'Connor, and Ellen Glasgow. Work by minority writers including Jean Toomer, Richard Wright, Frank Chin, and Toni Morrison also receives close attention. An appendix organizes entries by decade of publication, and the work is indexed by subject and title.

The Four Lost Men Thomas Wolfe, 2008 This is the never before published extended version of Wolfe's short story in memory of his father. The Four Lost Men is the first publication of the long version of Wolfe's story of familial and national reflection set during World War I. Wolfe supplies a moving portrait of his dying father as well as a rich meditation on American history and ambitions on the verge of America's entry into a broadening global conflict. Discussion of the title characters, Presidents Garfield, Arthur, Harrison, and Hayes, provides opportunity for assessment of the mood and promise of the nation as well as reflection on the obstacles that had obscured paths toward untapped American potential. Garfield, Arthur, Harrison, and Hayes, the four Republican presidents who followed Grant during the Reconstruction and post-Reconstruction eras, were all Civil War generals and self-made men, though none experienced a particularly distinguished term in office. These presidents are iconic figures in the stories and political musings of the narrator's dying father. In his efforts to understand their importance to his father, the teenaged narrator comes to appreciate the act of storytelling that redefines these men in his father's memory and in turn redefines his father in his own memory. Originally published as a short story of 7,000 words in Scribner's Magazine in 1934 and later abridged by 1,000 words for reissue in the 1935 anthology From Death to Morning, Wolfe's expanded tale is published here for the first time in its intended form and full length of some 21,000 words. Editors Arlyn and Matthew J. Bruccoli have employed the same methods to reestablish this text as they used to win wide acclaim in their centennial edition of O Lost: The Story of a Buried Life, the unabridged version of Wolfe's Look Homeward, Angel. The reestablishment of the long version of Four Lost Men opens an undeveloped area of scholarship into Wolfe's short fiction and serves as a model for restoring other
