Extract from The Railway Children by E. Nesbit.

Three siblings, Roberta (nicknamed Bobbie), Phyllis and Peter, live by a railway and have been watching a group of students do a cross-country race. The runners have gone through a railway tunnel, but the children have noticed that one runner, who is wearing a red jumper, has not come out the other side. They have decided to go into the tunnel to look for him.

This book was written in 1906, so the train being described is a steam train and the railway lines would not have been electric.

- 1 ...everything is quite different when you walk into a tunnel on your own feet and tread on shifting, sliding stones and gravel on a path that curves downwards from the shining metals to the wall. Then you see slimy, oozy trickles of water running down the inside of the tunnel, and you notice that the bricks are not red or brown, as they are at the tunnel's mouth, but dull, sticky, sickly green. Your voice, when you speak, is quite changed from what it was out in the sunshine, and it is a long time before the tunnel is quite dark.
- 2 It was not yet quite dark in the tunnel when Phyllis caught at Bobbie's skirt, ripping out half a yard of gathers, but no-one noticed this at the time.
- 3 "I want to go back", she said. I don't like it. It'll be pitch dark in a minute. I won't go on in the dark, I don't care what you say, I won't..."
- 4 "Don't be a silly cuckoo," said Peter, "I've got a candle and matches and.....what's that?"
- 5 "That" was a low, humming sound on the railway line, a trembling of the wires beside it, a buzzing, humming sound that grew louder and louder as they listened.
- 6 "It's a train!" said Bobbie.
- 7 "Let me go back," cried Phyllis, struggling to get away from the hand by which Bobbie held her.
- 8 "Don't be a coward," said Bobbie, "It's quite safe. Stand back."
- 9 "Come on ", shouted Peter, who was a few yards ahead. " Quick! Manhole!"
- 10 The roar of the advancing train was now louder than the noise you hear when your head is under water in the bath and both taps are running, and you are kicking with your heels against the bath's tin sides. But Peter had shouted for all he was worth, and Bobbie heard him. She dragged Phyllis along to the manhole. Phyllis, of course, stumbled over the wires and grazed both her legs. But they dragged her in, and all three stood in the dark, damp arch recess while the train roared louder and louder. It seemed as if it would deafen them. In the distance, they could see its eyes of fire growing bigger and brighter at every instant.

Transfer from the Primary Classroom Maurice Galton, Linda Hargreaves, 2003-12-16 The ORACLE Observation and Classroom Learning and Evaluation and its follow-up study address the following questions: Has teaching in the primary school changed over the past twenty years? Has pupil performance improved or declined? Are the links between certain teacher approaches and pupil achievement still the same? Has the National Curriculum had any important consequences for the way in which transfer is conducted? One of the main claims of the National Curriculum is that it has provided greater continuity through the various stages, and this should be reflected in smoother transition from one school to the next. This book focuses on the issue of transfer from the primary to the secondary school, using data from the ORACLE project. This study, which took place from 1975 to 1980, followed by Son of ORACLE, the study of group work in the primary classroom 1980 to 1983, has had an enormous influence on the debate on primary education. The studies described in detail what took place in primary classrooms, the teaching styles used by teachers, and the responses made by pupils. It linked these processes to pupil performance. Finally, it followed the pupils as they transferred out of the primary school into the secondary phase of education At present a new research project is being carried out in Leicester It involves studying primary schools for one year and then following the children as they transfer to the secondary phase or to a middle school The project involves two thirds of the schools used in the original ORACLE research In addition the same observation instruments and the same tests modified for cultural differences are being used
