Resilience in the Pacific and the Caribbean Simon Hollis, 2020-10-26 This book critically examines the global diffusion and local reception of resilience through the implementation of Disaster Risk Reduction DRR programmes in Pacific and Caribbean island states Global efforts to strengthen local disaster resilience capacities have become a staple of international development activity in recent decades yet the successful implementation of DRR projects designed to strengthen local resilience remains elusive While there are pockets of success a gap remains between global expectations and local realities Through a critical realist study of global and local worldviews of resilience in the Pacific and Caribbean islands this book argues that the global advocacy of DRR remains inadequate because of a failure to prioritise a person orientated ethics in its conceptualization of disaster resilience This regional comparison provides a valuable lens to understand the underlying social structures that makes resilience possible and the extent to which local governments communities and persons interpret and modify their behaviour on risk when faced with the global message on resilience This book will be of much interest to students of resilience risk management development studies and area studies Writings on American History, 1918 Reports of the President and of the Treasurer John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, 1928 Working the Navajo Way Colleen M. O'Neill, 2005 O'Neill chronicles a history of Navajo labor that illuminates how cultural practices and values influenced what it meant to work for wages or to produce commodities for the marketplace Through accounts of Navajo coal miners weavers and those who left the reservation in search of wage work she explores the tension between making a living the Navajo way and working elsewhere BOOK JACKET Booklist, 1928

Laboratory Manual in American History Howard Eugene Wilson, 1928 Leading Documents of English History Guy Carleton Lee, 1900 "The Garden of the World" Dan Hicks, 2007 Studies in Contemporary and Historical Archaeology 3 This study uses the perspectives of what might be termed the empirical tradition of British landscape archaeology that developed in the 1960s and 1970s especially in industrial archaeology to explore the early modern history of the garden landscapes formed by British colonialism in the eastern Caribbean and their place in the world It presents a detailed chronological sequence of the changing material conditions of these English British owned plantation landscapes during the 17th 18th and early 19th centuries with particular reference to the origins history and legacies of the sugar industry The study draws together the results of archaeological fieldwork and documentary research to present a progressive account of the historical landscapes of the islands of St Kitts and St Lucia sketching a chronological outline of landscape change This approach to landscape is characterised by the integration of archaeological field survey standing buildings recording alongside documentary and cartographic sources and focuses upon producing accounts of material change to landscapes and buildings By providing a long term perspective on eastern Caribbean colonial history from the nature of early effectively prehistoric contact and interaction in the 16th century through early permanent European settlements and into the developed sugar societies of the 18th and 19th centuries the study suggests a temporal and thematic framework of landscape change that might inform the further development of historical archaeology in the island Caribbean region The broader aim of the study relates to exploring how archaeological techniques can be used to contribute a highly detailed empirical case study to the interdisciplinary study of postcolonial landscapes and British colonialism In order to achieve this goal the study

draws upon the techniques of what has been called the empirical tradition of landscape archaeology History of Hardwick, Massachusetts Lucius Robinson Paige, 1883 Documents Relating to the Colonial, Revolutionary and Post-Revolutionary History of the State of New Jersey , 1895
