History of Chemoattractant Research Bernhard Moser, 2016-01-07 In the Research Topic History of Chemoattractant Research we will portray some of the key discoveries that helped to transform cell migration research into a global playing field within immunology and beyond Early progress had a profound effect on both academia and industry Today numerous academic laboratories are fully engaged in compiling a detailed road map describing the highly complex network of immune and tissue cells that respond to chemoattractants Industrial research on the other hand centers on drugs that interfere with immune cell traffic in inflammatory diseases and cancer The following series of short stories provide personal accounts on key discoveries The individual molecular discoveries enabled numerous research laboratories worldwide to unravel their significance in steady state or pathological immune processes Although ground breaking in their own right it is therefore worth emphasizing that rapid progress in chemoattractant research was made possible by many other laboratories who were not directly involved in the original discovery process Therefore the authors of this mini series are discussing their findings in the context of time place and subsequent progress enabled by their discoveries It is hoped that a wide readership will find these accounts entertaining as well as educational although those who wish to gain a more detailed knowledge are referred to the many outstanding reviews on chemokines and other chemoattractants

Genomics in Aquaculture to Better Understand Species Biology and Accelerate Genetic Progress José Manuel Yáñez,Ross Houston,Scott Newman,2016-09-15 From a global perspective aquaculture is an activity related to food production with large potential for growth Considering a continuously growing population the efficiency and sustainability of this activity will be crucial to meet the needs of protein for human consumption in the near future However for continuous enhancement of the culture of both fish and shellfish there are still challenges to overcome mostly related to the biology of the cultured species and their interaction with increasingly changing environmental factors Examples of these challenges include early sexual maturation feed meal replacement immune response to infectious diseases and parasites and temperature and salinity tolerance Moreover it is estimated that less than 10% of the total aquaculture production in the world is based on populations genetically improved by means of artificial selection Thus there is considerable room for implementing breeding schemes aimed at improving productive traits having significant economic impact By far the most economically relevant trait is growth rate which can be efficiently improved by conventional genetic selection i e based on breeding values of selection candidates However there are other important traits that cannot be measured directly on selection candidates such as resistance against infectious and parasitic agents and carcass quality traits e g fillet yield and meat color However these traits can be more efficiently improved using molecular tools to assist breeding programs by means of marker assisted selection using a few markers explaining a high proportion of the trait variation or genomic selection using thousands of markers to estimate genomic breeding values The development and implementation of new technologies applied to molecular biology and genomics such as next generation sequencing methods and high throughput genotyping platforms are allowing the rapid increase of availability of genomic resources in aquaculture species These resources will provide powerful tools to the research community and will aid in the determination of the genetic factors involved in several biological aspects of aquaculture species In this regard it is important to establish discussion in terms of which strategies will be more efficient to solve the primary challenges that are affecting aquaculture systems around the world The main objective of this Research Topic is to provide a forum to communicate recent research and implementation strategies in the use of genomics in aquaculture species with emphasis on 1 a better understanding of fish and shellfish biological processes having considerable impact on aquaculture systems and 2 the efficient incorporation of molecular information into breeding programs to accelerate genetic progress of economically relevant traits Global Inventory of National and Regional Qualifications Frameworks 2022 European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training,European Training Foundation,UNESCO,2023-09-27 Science Education in the 21st Century Tang Wee Teo,Aik-Ling Tan,Yann Shiou Ong,2020-06-29 This book reflects on science education in the first 20 years of the 21st century in order to promote academic dialogue on science education from various standpoints and highlights emergent new issues such as education in science education research It also defines new research agendas that should be moved forward and inform new trajectories through the rest of the century Featuring 21 thematically grouped chapters it includes award winning papers and other significant papers that address the theme of the 2018 International Science Education Conference
