

Chapter 7 Study Guide

In Chapter 7 we study Activity-Based Costing (ABC) which is a more sophisticated and accurate way of applying overhead based on activities used in the manufacture of a product. ABC is very helpful in making internal managerial decisions. It is important to know the most accurate overhead to determine the most accurate possible cost of a product—so that focus can be on manufacturing the most profitable products—and pricing decisions can be made with the best possible accounting information.

A common problem with using traditional overhead costing with one predetermined overhead rate is that some products (usually high volume basic, standard products) are likely to be overcosted and therefore overpriced. More importantly, lower volume more custom, deluxe products requiring modifications are likely to be undercosted, and therefore underpriced. So the company could be losing money on their custom or deluxe brands, and not even know it if they are using simplified traditional methods of applying overhead.

1. Eccles Corporation uses an activity-based costing system with three activity cost pools. The company has provided the following data concerning its costs and its activity-based costing system.

Costs:
Wages and salaries	$ 273,000
Depreciation	207,000
Utilities	199,000
Total	$ 679,000

Distribution of resource consumption:

	Activity Cost Pools			Total
	Assembly	Setup	Other
Wages and salaries	50%	30%	20%	100%
Depreciation	30%	20%	40%	100%
Utilities	20%	60%	20%	100%

How much cost, in total, would be allocated in the first-stage allocation to the Assembly activity cost pool?

$236,063

$248,750

$339,500

$135,800

Allocation to the Assembly activity cost pool:

Wages and salaries (50% × $273,000)	$ 136,500
Depreciation (30% × $207,000)	72,450
Utilities (20% × $199,000)	39,800
Total	$ 248,750
