Machine Learning with Noisy Labels Gustavo Carneiro, 2024-02-23 Most of the modern machine learning models based on deep learning techniques depend on carefully curated and cleanly labelled training sets to be reliably trained and deployed However the expensive labelling process involved in the acquisition of such training sets limits the number and size of datasets available to build new models slowing down progress in the field Alternatively many poorly curated training sets containing noisy labels are readily available to be used to build new models However the successful

English abstract. This philosophy paper argues for the need to bring back a meritocracy into our culture again. It debates the question of whether authority and leadership should come from merit and achievement or whether a person's life should be the primary focus in our society for this role. To do this, it tries to show how important it is to follow the examples that were always set in place by the great masters as heroes of the past and forms a critique against the postmodernism of the 90s. In particular, it criticises the media, including
