Analysis of PADDD: an environmental econometric application Gláucio Costa de Menezes, Isabel Lausanne Fontgalland, The environment has always been a great source of raw material for humanity whether this matter is of plant animal or mineral origin The vast majority of needs are met through factor factor and factor product correlations which indicate in their genesis the nature of economic development However numerous scientific works especially those produced by scholars of the economic sciences demonstrate that some resources made available by nature are finite and it should therefore be sought to develop strategic measures so that their use occurs in the most rational way possible Among these strategies is since the 1970s the creation and dissemination of so called protected areas whose main scope is the preservation of the environment for future generations
