Silent Epidemic Plagues Thousands of Americans

As we eat, our bodies convert food into a substance called glucose, which is used to fuel cells. If a person's glucose level is too low (less than 60 mg/dl), the cells won't have enough energy to function properly. Hypoglycemia is a metabolic disorder characterized by low blood sugar (glucose) levels. Reactive hypoglycemia (also called postprandial hypoglycemia) refers to recurrent episodes of hypoglycemia within three hours of a high-carbohydrate meal in people who do not have diabetes. In many cases, following full-blown diabetes is reversed, a person will experience a number of hours of hypoglycemia.

One major problem for diabetics taking either insulin or oral antidiabetic medications is recurrent bouts of hypoglycemia caused by the medication itself.

This has been associated with a number of health problems, including memory loss, dementia, depression, cardiac problems, strokes, and autoimmune dysregulation.

The pathological and health effects related to this type of medicine-induced hypoglycemia are essentially the same as reactive hypoglycemia, though in most cases reactive hypoglycemia is not as severe.

Over the years, I have written about reactive hypoglycemia in connection with a number of health problems. In this month's issue of The Blaylock Wellness Report, I will delve deeper into this condition, which is one of the most common health disorders we face, and is rapidly increasing, mainly because of massive ingestion of sugar and high-glucose foods and drinks.

Doctors Following Establishment Mythology

Reactive hypoglycemia can actually indicate many other conditions, including:

- Neurological conditions

It can also greatly worsen a number of medical conditions, especially neurological disorders and diseases. For example, it is almost impossible to
