University of New South Wales Sydney course International Investment Law language English abstract In recent years umbrella clauses have become a frequent vehicle for safeguarding investment contracts and their interpretation a major challenge for the competent tribunals In contrast to the common view umbrella clauses do not blur the distinction between international and municipal law provided that exactly this fundamental distinction is observed in the process of interpretation This paper advocates a restrictive interpretation of umbrella clauses in order to achieve a balance between the interests of involved actors In line with the wording and the original function of investment treaties it is argued that only sovereign conduct of the host state may constitute a violation of the umbrella clause obligation The Southeastern Reporter ,1906
