EMPIRE STRIKES BACK Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies, 2004-08-02 First Published in 1982 The Empire Strikes Back examines the place of race and racism in the political transformation of Britain at the end of the seventies and argues that Britain has entered a longterm political and economic crisis which has brought new urgency to the politics of race and nation The authors explore the elements of a new culturally focused racism which in representations of black families stresses their alienness and the supposed criminal inclinations of the black population They argue that the British state is very far from its popular image as a liberal democracy and that all our notions of culture nation and class are based on deeply racist structures Key areas of state intervention such as schooling policing and policy oriented race relations research are analysed to demonstrate that a definition of the growing crisis in the economy and social services is emerging which shifts the focus of blame on to black people The authors argue that existing race relations theory has significantly failed to deal adequately with the British situation In particular the experience of black women and the political organization of young black people raises major problems for race blind feminism and Eurocentric Marxism alike In conclusion the book assesses the political relation of race to class and suggests that any long term struggle against racism must begin by recognizing the autonomy of black struggles at all levels of British society Divider-in-Chief Kate Obenshain, 2012-09-04 Expose of the hypocrisy cynicism and extremism of the Obama administration This book identifies where and how he has been the ultimate divider of Americans Rule-Following: Oxford Bibliographies Online Research Guide Martin Kusch, 2010-06 This ebook is a selective guide designed to help scholars and students of social work find reliable sources of information by directing them to the best available scholarly materials in whatever form or format they appear from books chapters and journal articles to online archives electronic data sets and blogs Written by a leading international authority on the subject the ebook provides bibliographic information supported by direct recommendations about which sources to consult and editorial commentary to make it clear how the cited sources are interrelated related This ebook is a static version of an article from Oxford Bibliographies Online Philosophy a dynamic continuously updated online resource designed to provide authoritative guidance through scholarship and other materials relevant to the study Philosophy Oxford Bibliographies Online covers most subject disciplines within the social science and humanities for more information visit www.oxfordbibliographies.com The Michigan Technic ,1962 Glassworker ,1906 Princeton Alumni Weekly ,1962 A Body of Individuals Sue-Im Lee, 2009 Why are some versions of the collective we admired and desired while other versions are scorned and feared A Body of Individuals The Paradox of Community in Contemporary Fiction examines the conflict over the collective we through discourses of community In the discourse of benevolent community community is a tool towards achieving healing productiveness and connection In the discourse of dissenting community community that serves a function is simply another name for totalitarianism instead community must merely be a fact of coexistence What are the sources and the appeal of these irreconcilable views of community and how do they interact in contemporary fiction's attempt at imagining we. By engaging contemporary U.S. writers such as Toni Morrison, Richard Powers, Karen Tei Yamashita, Lydia Davis, Lynne Tillman, and David Markson with theorists such as Jean-Luc Nancy, Giorgio Agamben, François Lyotard, Ernesto Laclau, Louis Althusser, Roland Barthes, and Ludwig Wittgenstein, this book reveals how the two conflicting discourses of community, benevolent and dissenting, are inextricably intertwined in various literary visions of the world of the human and of coexistence. These literary visions demonstrate in a way that popular visions of community and postmodern theories of community cannot: the dialectical relationship between the discourses of benevolent community and dissenting community. Sue Im Lee argues that contemporary fiction's inability to resolve the paradox results in a model of ambivalent community, one that offers unique insights into community and into the very notion of unity.

Stephanou, Helen Xanthaki, 2000 Article 215 2 new Article 288 2 EC introduces the right of individuals to seek compensation for damages caused to them by wrongful acts or omissions of EU institutions. This provision has been interpreted to give rise to concurrent liability between EU institutions and Member States for damages caused to individuals in amongst others cases of breaches of EC law. The authors argue that the post Francovich ECJ case law on state liability allows this legal provision to be used as the legal basis for an action for damages against Member States which violate EC law and the Commission for its failure to fulfil the supervisory task entrusted to it by Article 155 new Article 211. The concurrent liability scenario raises theoretical questions about the position of the individual in EC law and about the supranational versus state-centric integration dialectic. Can this scenario be used as a springboard for the ECJ to offer the individual citizen of the Union a chance to finally fight back?
