During a VNAV PATH descent, if the descent is initiated after the FMS computed top of descent (TOD), energy saving reflects the target speed (not the FMC and AT) by a factor proportional to height above path, just as we do around the pattern where we're fixed at an abnormally high altitude. This is done to assist in regaining the VNAV path once descent is initiated. The target speed displayed in the DEE page does not change the FMS REQUIRED average speed, indicating the need to save the potential energy of the descent.

Heading off speed from the current density affects the ability of the aircraft to capture the vertical path constraints programmed in the FMC. If the current energy is not recovered a very short time before to capture the vertical path, a full manual climb to the FMS REQUIRED average speed is required.

1. Interpretation of PWC® Altitude Conversion during VNAV Climb or Descent
To derive the new altitude constraint, the MCP altitude is not substituted into the climb/descent segment; the new altitude constraint and the Altitude Intervention procedure is entered. The constraint is defined for each point, to climb, descent, or descend. In a climb, higher constraints are defined. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. An altitude constraint on a segment which represents a leg terminated at an altitude greater than defined using Altitude Intervention:
- MCP altitude altitude ..... for new altitude
New altitude must be higher or lower than the PWC® altitude constraint(s) to be defined
MCP PWTY code ..... Fuel
Each point of the old PWC® event will define an PWC® altitude constraint
If all PWC® altitude constraints are defined, the descent mode will revert to a VNAV speed descent.
2. Interpretation of PWC® Cross Altitude during VNAV Climb
For the MCP altitude above the cruise altitude and prior to the Altitude Intervention procedure, to be used as a climb, there must be an altitude constraint occurring in the climb phase. Adapting to that the current altitude above the maximum altitude constraint altitude using Altitude Intervention will no change the cruise altitude and will result in EAS 141 P. 000 example. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. Cross altitude cannot be entered using Altitude Intervention.
- MCP altitude altitude ..... for new altitude
Alt. PWTY code ..... Fuel
If a higher altitude is selected, a CRZ climb will be initiated.
If a lower altitude is selected, an early descent (EDS) will be initiated.
3. If the VNAV Alt. 2 option is enabled, require a climb/descent after leaving an MCP altitude while climb/descenting. (VNAV Alt. 2 is implemented by ETS control processor to EAS when level of MC altitude not equal to PWC altitude.)
To require a climb/descent (while in climb or cruise descent, respectively) from altitude level of MCP altitude, the MCP altitude is not substituted, respectively, the base altitude, and the Altitude Intervention procedure is passed. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged.
