Beyond the Basic Biography Report

This writing across the curriculum lesson was created by Nevada teacher Christy Aker-Minetto.

Christy considers this comparison/contrast writing task to be appropriate for students in grades 3-8.

Lesson Overview:

Objectives/Overview: Students will borrow from the mentor text's format and structure for relating non-fiction information about a noteworthy historical figure. They will make comparisons between themselves and a researched figure. They then will teach their peers about their historical figure through the sharing of their published essay, which can also be turned into a personal book.

Students will demonstrate knowledge of a noteworthy historical figure with writing that is engaging to read and that uses a literature-based framework. Students will acknowledge the contributions of historical significance of said historical figure.

Time Needed: Between four and six 45-minute sessions

Writing skills (traits) to stress while teaching this lesson:

- Idea Development (writing with a clear, central idea or theme in mind; and putting researched ideas into one's own words)
- Voice (conveying passion towards the message of the writing or the topic)
- Conventions (spelling skills, punctuation skills, capitalization skills, grammar usage and skills, indenting and spacing)
