Remote Instrumentation and Virtual Laboratories Franco Davoli, Norbert Meyer, Roberto Pugliese, Sandro Zappatore, 2010-03-10 Accessing remote instrumentation worldwide is one of the goals of e Science The task of enabling the execution of complex experiments that involve the use of distributed scientific instruments must be supported by a number of different architectural domains which inter work in a coordinated fashion to provide the necessary functionality These domains embrace the physical instruments the communication network interconnecting the distributed systems the service oriented abstractions and their middleware The Grid paradigm or more generally the Service Oriented Architecture SOA viewed as a tool for the integration of distributed resources plays a significant role not only to manage computational aspects but increasingly as an aggregator of measurement instrumentation and pervasive large scale data acquisition platforms In this context the functionality of a SOA allows managing maintaining and exploiting heterogeneous instrumentation and acquisition devices in a unified way by providing standardized interfaces and common working environments to their users but the peculiar aspects of dealing with real instruments of widely different categories may add new functional requirements to this scenario On the other hand the growing transport capacity of core and access networks allows data transfer at unprecedented speed but new challenges arise from wireless access wireless sensor networks and the traversal of heterogeneous network domains The book focuses on all aspects related to the effective exploitation of remote instrumentation and to the building complex virtual laboratories on top of real devices and infrastructures These include SOA and related middleware high speed networking in support of Grid applications wireless Grids for acquisition devices and sensor networks Quality of Service QoS provisioning for real time control measurement instrumentation and methodology as well as metrology issues in distributed systems

Smith, Robert A. Henning, Michael G. Wade, Thomas Fisher, 2014-08-26 Understanding the conditions under which variability in performance may arise and the processes related to its emergence gives us insight into the development of techniques for improving the quality of performance Variability in Human Performance details the scientific and the practical implications of human performance variability by providing a broad perspective on how and why such variability occurs across a number of disciplinary domains The text takes an approach that rests upon the idea of context or design specificity in performance namely that variability in performance is closely referenced to design factors in the environment in which performance is occurring An exploration of the link between variability and related processes the book introduces a comprehensive framework for understanding human performance variability presented in terms of how human control of behavior is closely tied to design factors in the performance environment The authors introduce empirical evidence as well as practical examples and application areas in support of this framework The book begins with coverage of neurobiological and biomechanical basis of movement variability then examines rich and extensive empirical evidence available for context specificity in cognitive performance and learning as a basis for cognitive performance variability The book then reviews the evidence for context specificity in Student learning Displaced feedback conditions Human error behavior Affective performance Social and team performance The authors also explore work performance as influenced by complex sociotechnical systems and as a basis for performance variability applying control systems concepts to an interpretation of the nature and basis of performance variability in all of these domains They conclude by taking an evolutionary perspective on the origins and behavioral significance of human performance variability The book then provides strategies on how individuals groups and organizations can significantly reduce variability in human performance that often leads to systems failures
