CLEAN BURN TECHNOLOGY CATALYTIC OR NON-CATALYTIC?

Let's talk about catalytic and non-catalytic technology. There are benefits from each system.

CATALYTIC

Like a car's catalytic converter, a catalytic woodstove system works to reduce emissions. But unlike a car, our catalytic combustor also burns the smoke, or unburned fuel, within the stove. This generates more heat — and less smoke — from each chunk of wood. It's as simple as that. In general, our catalytic models offer you the convenience of a larger firebox and a less active, more even, fire. Because of the greater fuel capacity and efficiency, your fuel load lasts longer with less tending. Catalytic stoves are perfect for the serious woodburner looking for steady, long-lasting heat.

Catalytic System

1. As air enters the stove through the draft control, it's preheated to assure effective combustion.
2. A full-tunnel baffle forces smoke back through the fire to promote secondary combustion.
3. Air is added through a metered system that provides oxygen to help the catalytic combustor complete its job.
4. Finally, the flow restrictor slows gases and houses a catalytic combustor to assure a certified clean burn.

NON-CATALYTIC

A non-catalytic system is designed for the blaze-gazing romantic. Our HT (high tech) system relies on high firebox temperatures and metered oxygen flow to get the maximum fuel value from each piece of wood. Smoke is literally burned by the heat of the fire itself — within the woodstove's carefully engineered environment. Our non-catalytic models are simple to operate and provide the beautiful, dramatic flames that serious fire watchers demand. While these stoves require a bit more tending, for some people that's half the fun!

Non-Catalytic System

1. The primary air control draws air into a preheating system to promote fast, clean start-ups and to facilitate clean combustion. (This preheated air is drawn downward across the glass to keep the window clear for clear viewing.)
2. Some models use supplemental start-up air.
3. Primary combustion takes place within the fuel load.
4. Above the primary fire, preheated air is drawn through a series of metered holes under the baffle to complete the combustion of unburned gases.
5. All our non-catalytic stoves, like their catalytic cousins, give you a certified "smoke-free" burn and more heat for your home.
