Abstract

This paper aims to inform, that the evaluation of the education system at all levels of education can be done with action research, more precisely with classroom action research. The author already experienced in classroom action research for various levels of education, both secondary education, higher education and even, in undergraduate and postgraduate programs. The author had experience in conducting research with classroom action research in the beginning undergraduate level since the end of the Twentieth Century. It Began by evaluating student learning outcomes in the four skills of German language learning, and since then until the twenty-first century, several studies related to author's lectures in strata one and two, as well as a variety of requests from school teachers in secondary education has been done. The results are an increase of in the level of learning for the system under study, and Because of continuing education each other the author concluded that the way of classroom action research study went from micro to macro scale. This mean classroom action research can also be used to evaluate the education system.

INTRODUCTION

Educational evaluation should be done by every manager in the education system, because the evaluation is the process of conducting a value judgment about the activities, performance, process, or other procedures that lead to a decision. In this case is the evaluation of learning outcomes. Assessment is commonly used as evaluation. While the assessment is the process of obtaining information that can be used in the evaluation. Assessment requires measurement method, which is defined as the provision of figures to a certain result or characteristic possessed by the rules of a particular object or a particular formula. In general, the measurement is done through exams and or surveys.

The purpose of this exams ranged from selection, placement, success, to remedial, and every test has a specific characteristics. For teachers, this test is to measure the success of learning in the classroom. In the class, exams might be formative or summative. Formative exams is to determine the development of learners, for example, with quizzes, UTS (midterms), whereas summative test is to determine the overall outcome of learning, namely the UAS (final exams). While the area of language mastery was measured with four language skills, ie, speaking, listening, reading, writing, also grammar and vocabulary.

To perform the measurement and evaluation, this paper will use action research that is applied in various levels of education. Action research is used according to John Elliot, 1981 (quoted by Altrichsen & Posch, 2007:13) "Aktionsforschung ist die systematische Untersuchung beruflicher Situationen, die von Lehrern und Lehrerinnen selber durchgeführt wird, in der Absicht, diese zu verbessern" (=action research is a systematic study on teacher performance, conducted by teachers themselves in order to improve performance). Means that in order to evaluate the education system one should use action research. The performance of education management and learning outcomes of learners can be improved with action research. This paper is related to problems in education evaluation system that can be assisted by applying action research.

DISCUSSION

As has been stated, that the evaluation of education needs to be done, in addition to maintaining the quality of education constancy, also improving the quality of education at all educational levels. Assessment is used as a process of acquiring information that is based on a measurement for evaluation. Thus the need to process the collection and use of information by the teacher through a number of evidence to make decisions about the learner's achievement of competencies. It means that the purpose of classroom assessment is to assess the ability of the individual through the bill and certain tasks, meant to help and encourage learners to learn, and to help and encourage teachers to teach better, also determine the learning strategies, institutional accountability, and improve the quality of education.
