Name: _____ Date: _____

Data tables keep your experiment results organized and give the steps to making a data table.

1. On a piece of paper, draw a box to make the shape of a data table like the one shown below.
2. Give your table a title that describes your variables ("The Effect of Different Types of Movies on Heart Rate").
3. Label the columns on the left as the independent variable (Type of Movie). Underneath, list each type of movie you used for the independent variable (Drama, Comedy, Horror).
4. Label the columns to the right as the dependent variable (Heart Rate: Beats per Minute). Draw boxes under these columns in which you can record the result of each test for each independent variable.
5. Usually a scientist records the average result for each independent variable. To calculate the average result for each independent variable, add up the results of all tests for a particular independent variable. Then divide the number by the number of tests. Repeat this for the remaining independent variables.

The Effect of Different Types of Movies on Heart Rate

Type of Movie	Heart Rate (Beats per Minute)
	Test 1	Test 2	Test 3	Average
Drama	88	92	91	90
Comedy	92	92	90	91
Horror	104	98	106	103
