There were some clips in my film that I thought were quite boring to watch on their own so I combined three clips into a split screen effect. This allows the viewer to see the location as well as the model and her outfit at the same time.

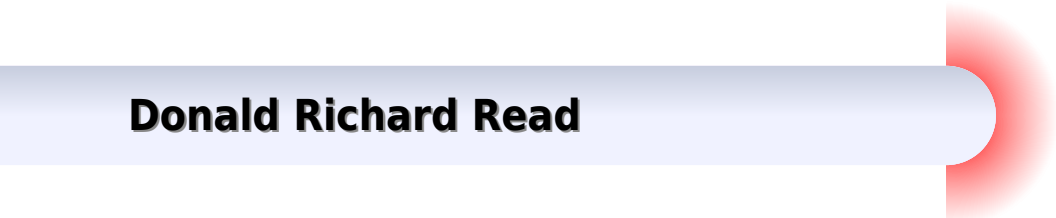

I also like the effect created when I have two clips in the split screen side by side. I have done this to show the opening location shot and then to the right there is the same positioning of the camera but the model is in the clip. I also like how the left clip pans upwards whilst the right clip is static while the model walks towards the camera. This makes the film more interesting rather than have these clips play separately after each other.
