

Chapter 13

Let's break down these concepts with explanations and examples:

1. Market Structures:

- Market structures refer to the characteristics of different markets, including the number of firms, pricing behavior, profit levels, and other market properties. Four primary market structures are discussed in your notes.
- Examples:
 - Monopoly: Imagine a small town with only one electricity provider. This provider is a monopoly because it has no competitors.
 - Oligopoly: Consider the automobile manufacturing industry, which is dominated by a few large firms, such as Ford, General Motors, and Toyota.
 - Monopolistic Competition: Think of local restaurants in a city where each offers a slightly different menu and atmosphere to attract customers.
 - Perfect Competition: A classic example of perfect competition is the agricultural market, where numerous farmers sell identical products like wheat or rice.

2. Cartels:

- Cartels are agreements between firms to coordinate their actions, often by setting prices or production levels to maximize collective profit. They behave like a monopoly.
- The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is a well-known example of an international cartel.
- Example:
 - OPEC member countries, such as Saudi Arabia, Iran, and Venezuela, coordinate to control oil production levels and global oil prices.

3. Cournot Oligopoly:

- In a Cournot oligopoly, firms independently choose their output levels without collusion, and the market output, price, and profits lie between the competitive and monopoly levels.
- Example:
 - Imagine two rival airlines, Delta and American. Both airlines decide how many flights to operate independently, which affects the overall price and quantity of flights in the market.

4. Stackelberg Oligopoly:

- In a Stackelberg oligopoly, a leader firm chooses its output level before identical-cost rivals set theirs. The leader firm can make a higher profit than other firms.

While there are many great research articles, good books, and provocative policy analyses related to the economics of education, these materials are often written to influence the policy process and not necessarily for students with limited knowledge of the underlying policies and the economic framework. This textbook is intended to serve as a foundation for a broad-based course on the economics of education. Its goal is to provide an overview of economics of education research, to lay out the evidence as clearly as possible, note agreements, disagreements, and unresolved points in literature, and to help students develop the tools necessary to draw their own conclusions.
