Building Literacy in Social Studies Donna Ogle, Ron Klemp, 2007-04-15 Preparing students to be active informed literate citizens is one of the primary functions of public schools But how can students become engaged citizens if they can't read let alone understand their social studies texts What can educators and social studies teachers in particular do to help students develop the knowledge skills and motivation to become engaged in civic life Building Literacy in Social Studies addresses this question by presenting both the underlying concepts and the research based techniques that teachers can use to engage students and build the skills they need to become successful readers critical thinkers and active citizens The authors provide targeted strategies including teaching models graphic organizers and step by step instructions for activities such as Building vocabulary Developing textbook literacy skills Interpreting primary and secondary sources Applying critical thinking skills to newspapers and magazines and Evaluating Internet sources Readers will also learn how to organize classrooms into models of democracy by creating learning communities that support literacy instruction distribute authority encourage cooperation and increase accountability among students Realistic scenarios depict a typical social studies teacher's experience before and after implementing the strategies in the classroom showing their potential to make a significant difference in how students respond to instruction By making literacy strategies a vital part of content area instruction teachers not only help students better understand their schoolwork but also open students eyes to the power that informed and engaged people have to change the world

The Oxford Handbook of Assessment Policy and Practice in Music Education, Volume 2 Timothy Brophy, 2019-01-02 In the music classroom instructors who hope to receive aid are required to provide data on their classroom programs Due to the lack of reliable valid large scale assessments of student achievement in music however music educators in schools that accept funds face a considerable challenge in finding a way to measure student learning in their classrooms From Australia to Taiwan to the Netherlands music teachers experience similar struggles in the quest for a definitive assessment resource that can be used by both music educators and researchers In this two volume Handbook contributors from across the globe come together to provide an authority on the assessment measurement and evaluation of student learning in music The Handbook's first volume emphasizes international and theoretical perspectives on music education assessment in the major world regions This volume also looks at technical aspects of measurement in music and outlines situations where theoretical foundations can be applied to the development of tests in music The Handbook's second volume offers a series of practical and US focused approaches to music education assessment Chapters address assessment in different types of US classrooms how to assess specific skills or requirements and how assessment can be used in tertiary and music teacher education classrooms Together both volumes of The Oxford Handbook of Assessment in Music Education pave the way forward for music educators and researchers in the field

Resources in Education, 1979 Messages and Documents Oregon, 1911 New Directions in Assessing Historical Thinking Kadriye Ercikan, Peter Seixas, 2015-02-20

New technologies have radically transformed our relationship to information in general and to little bits of information in particular. The assessment of history learning which for a century has valued those little bits as the centerpiece of its practice now faces not only an unprecedented glut but a disconnect with what is valued in history education. More complex processes, historical thinking, historical consciousness or historical sense making demand more complex assessments. At the same time, advances in scholarship on assessment open up new possibilities. For this volume, Kadriye Ercikan and Peter Seixas have assembled an international array of experts who have collectively moved the fields of history education and assessment forward. Their various approaches negotiate the sometimes conflicting demands of theoretical sophistication, empirically demonstrated validity and practical efficiency. Key issues include articulating the cognitive goals of history education, the relationship between content and procedural knowledge, the impact of students' language literacy on history assessments and methods of validation in both large scale and classroom assessments. New Directions in Assessing Historical Thinking is a critical research oriented resource that will advance the conceptualization, design and validation of the next generation of history assessments.
