

End-of-life

When software is no longer sold or supported, the product is said to have reached end-of-life. In this stage all support and maintenance activities for specific version has been closed.

Version Naming Guidelines

1. All assemblies (DLL's) under the product must reflect a single version of product and assemblies. You can achieve this by changing "Assemblyinfo.cs" file under each project under the solution. The smarter way to do this is put a single "Assemblyinfo.cs" under your main project and refer this into other projects as a "Link File".
2. Version should be released with following naming scheme:

PRODUCT NAME (LIFECYCLE STAGE-LIFECYCLE STAGE NUMBER) MAJOR MINOR REVISION

For example:

PRODUCT (Beta-2) 1.2.2345

LIFECYCLE STAGE –Lifecycle stages are described in above section of this document. The values can be- alpha, beta, RC, RTM, GA, SP.

LIFECYCLE STAGE NUMBER –This is single digit number without "0" as prefix. The range for Lifecycle stage number is from 1 to 5. Even after 5th iteration of lifecycle stage, if the product is not able to achieve quality objectives, then it Lifecycle stage number should not be increased and will be kept under the maximum of its range i.e. 5.

MAJOR – This is double digit number without "0" as prefix till 1 to 9. Major version number is most significant piece of information and will be only increased after significant change in product functionalities.

MINOR –This is double digit number without "0" as prefix for 1-9. Minor version number is increased in case of minor changes to existing version of the product and major bug fixes (of type crash, data loss, security).

REVISION –This is four digits number. This is revised after each and every internal build that is delivered for testing purposes. One example of fictitious version is shown as per below:
