

Using Government's (GSA) Document

Directions: The following questions require you to research a relevant issue that emerges from interpretations of Documents A-F and your knowledge of the period referred to in the questions. To write each, you will need to use the documents and your outside knowledge of the topic.

Purpose: Using the documents below and your knowledge of U.S. history and political thought, argue whether government is a moral authority in national politics. Argue for justice and order or a democracy with a limited but necessary role in national human behavior. Use your outside knowledge from the documents and consider contrasting arguments among the founders.

Directions: Under the title, students should either government has a greater right or less a right to regulate human behavior if heightened factors like race and class inequalities define those favored government protected natural rights and some others have a less a right to liberty. The task is to clearly defend your side to evaluate these perspectives and argue to government a moral authority is a necessary role.

Document A (Document A): Thomas Paine – Common Sense (1776)

"Society in every state is a blessing, but Government, even in its best state, is but a necessary evil; not to be extended, as it increases our. For when the impetus of government does violence, and constantly abridges the equal liberty of other men; and that restoring the same, we think it necessary to consider the right of the people to remove them for the protection of the rest."

Document B: James Madison – Federalist No. 10 (1788)

"If men were angels, no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither justice nor liberty would be government's need. In reality, the government is needed for government, and in the real place where it is better than."
