

SOURCE 1A

The source below explains the effects of War Communism on the Russian economy.

War communism turned into a disaster, and the economic strength of Russia in all areas fell below the 1914 level. Peasant farmers knew that any excess crops would be seized by the state, so grew only for themselves. People in the countryside refused to cooperate in giving food for the war effort, while bad harvests compounded the hardships that the war caused. Malnutrition and disease were common.

The result was that industrial cities were starved of food, and workers started moving to the countryside to grow their own food, which further decreased the possibility of barter (exchange) of industrial goods for food and worsened the plight of the remaining urban population. In all, food requisitioning combined with the effects of seven years of war and a severe drought contributed to a devastating famine that caused a staggering 3–10 million deaths.

Worker and peasant strikes and rebellions broke out across the country. The Kronstadt Rebellion of March 1921 particularly surprised Lenin, who regarded the sailors there as the 'reddest of the Reds'. These uprisings were of further concern since they were led by opportunist leftists, which created competition with the Bolsheviks. The crisis undermined widespread loyalty to the government: Lenin needed to take decisive action.
