

Automatic Control of Boiler Operation using PLC and SCADA

Synopsis:

A boiler or steam generator is employed wherever a source of steam is required. A boiler incorporates a firebox or furnace in order to burn the fuel and generate heat; the heat is initially transferred to water to make steam; this produces saturated steam at ebullition temperature. Higher the furnace temperature fast the steam production. The saturated steam thus produced can then either be used immediately to produce power via a turbine and alternator, or else may be further superheated to a higher temperature; this notably reduces suspended water content making a given volume of steam produce more work.

The parameters like the temperature of the steam, the level of water, control of feed water pump, Pressure of the steam has to be measured and critically monitored for reliable and safe operation of the generation unit. This kind of operation with critical importance can be carried out efficiently and implemented employing Programmable Logic Controller (PLC).

Domain:

Manufacturing and Control Systems

Present Method:

In the past technology a lot of instrumentation and process control companies are used only data sheet maintenance and real time measurement for conveyer (I/P&O/P), load and speed. And to measure the boiler temperature & pressure value for manually. Manual control consists of feeding the control inputs given by the user directly to the system without the use of any automatic controller.
