

section 10 Meiosis

Before You Read

Think about the traits that make people unique. Some people are tall, while others are short. People can have brown, blue, or green eyes. On the lines below, list a few traits that make you look different from other people. In this section, you will learn how meiosis rearranges genes.

---

---

---

---

MAIN Idea

Meiosis produces haploid genes.

What You'll Learn

- how chromosome number decreases during meiosis
- the stages of meiosis
- how meiosis provides genetic variation

Read to Learn

Chromosomes and Chromosome Number

All students in your class have characteristics passed on to them by their parents. Each characteristic, such as hair color, eye color, and height, is called a trait.

The instructions for each trait are found on chromosomes. Recall that chromosomes are found in the nuclei of cells. The DNA on the chromosomes is arranged in sections that control the production of proteins. These DNA sections are called genes. Each chromosome has about 1500 genes. Each gene has a role in the characteristics of the cell and how the cell works. Living things have thousands of genes.

Human body cells have 46 chromosomes. Chromosomes come in pairs. You have 23 chromosomes from your father and 23 chromosomes from your mother, making 23 pairs of chromosomes.

Study Coach

Create a Quiz After you have read this section, create a quiz based on what you have learned. After you have completed writing the quiz questions, be sure to answer them.

Applying Math

1. Calculate the approximate number of genes humans have. Show your work.
