

Chapter 1: Personal Finance

1. Personal finance is:
 - A. the process of planning your spending, financing, and investing activities, while taking into account controllable events such as death or disability, in order to optimize your financial situation.
 - B. the process of planning your spending and investing activities, while taking into account uncontrollable events such as death or disability, in order to optimize your financial situation.
 - C. the process of planning your spending, financing, and investing activities, while taking into account uncontrollable events such as death or disability, in order to optimize your financial situation.
 - D. the process of planning your spending and investing activities, while taking into account controllable events such as death or disability, in order to optimize your financial situation.
2. Opportunity cost represents:
 - A. Short- versus long-term financial decisions.
 - B. the financial cost of any opportunity.
 - C. evaluating different alternatives for financial decisions.
 - D. what you give up as a result of making a decision.
3. An understanding of personal finance is beneficial to you in many ways, including:
 - A. all of the above.
 - B. helping you judge the guidance of financial planners.
 - C. helping you make informed decisions about your financial situation.
 - D. helping you determine whether a career as a financial planner is right for you.
4. Which of the following individuals would be considered a "big saver"?
 - A. Jill has recently inherited $20,000 from her aunt's estate. Jill is unsure whether she should use this money to pay off her student loans or buy a new car. She decides to put this money in a savings account until she can figure out what to do with it.
 - B. Ted earns $1000 per month, after deductions and taxes. Before he spends any of this money, he allocates 10 percent ($100) to his savings plan and then considers spending the rest of his money.
 - C. Frank earns $1100 per month, after deductions and taxes. He has a very active social life and spends most of his time out of the house with friends. Frank usually spends all of his take-home pay and sometimes is rejected by the ABM because he has no money in his account.
 - D. Maria earns $1200 per month, after deductions and taxes. Maria has always been nervous about spending money, fearing that she may not have enough when she needs it. She only spends money on the bare essentials of life. As a result, she is often able to save more than half of her monthly income.
5. Olani Waters, 32, and his spouse, Vanessa, 28, are expecting their first child in a few months. David, their financial planner, has agreed to help them determine how much life insurance they need and what their options are with respect to registered education savings plans (RESPs). What life stage would most appropriately describe the Waters' current financial position?
 - A. Early career
 - B. Family and mid-career
 - C. Prime earning
 - D. Education
