The Praeger International Handbook of Special Education Michael L. Wehmeyer, James R. Patton, 2017-06-15 This handbook provides a concise overview of special education services in countries across the world using the Article on Education in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities as the analytical frame The Praeger International Handbook of Special Education presents a concise and clear overview of special education services in more than 70 countries across the world using the Article on Education in the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with disabilities as the analytical frame Each chapter offers information about the country in general followed by sections on the public education system the private education system the special education system teacher training requirements and barriers to and promising trends in inclusive and special education The volumes and chapters are organized by the United Nations Geoscheme with Volume 1 including an overview of the volumes and chapters on countries in the Americas Volume 2 addressing countries from Europe and Africa and Volume 3 focusing on countries in Asia and Oceania This is the most complete exploration of the delivery of supports and services to children and youth with disabilities across the globe available The volumes do not compare among or between countries but rather provide a baseline for understanding current special education practices and their relationship with general education and inclusive practices across the globe Readers will come away with an in depth understanding of what is happening with regard to the implementation of special education services and Article 24 of the Convention for the Rights of People with Disabilities This valuable reference set serves researchers graduate students and policymakers in special and general education as well as professionals focused on issues of education worldwide and scholars focused on international special education As such this handbook will be an important reference source for university libraries professional associations and policy entities International Practices to Promote Budget Literacy Harika Masud, Helene Pfeil, Sanjay Agarwal, Alfredo Gonzalez Briseno, 2017-08-09 Budget literacy is defined as the ability to read decipher and understand public budgets to enable and enhance meaningful citizen participation in the budget process It is comprised of two main parts i a technical understanding of public budgets including familiarity with government spending tax rates and public debt and ii the ability to engage in the budget process comprising of practical knowledge on day to day issues as well as an elementary understanding of the economic social and political implications of budget policies the stakeholders involved and when and how to provide inputs during the annual budget cycle Given that no international standards or guidelines have been established for budget literacy education to date this book seeks to address this gap by taking stock of illustrative initiatives promoting budget literacy for youth in selected countries The underlying presumption is that when supply side actors in the budget process governments simplify and disseminate budget information for demand side actors citizens this information will then be used by citizens to provide feedback on the budget However since citizens are often insufficiently informed about public budgets to constructively participate in budget processes one way to empower them and to remedy the problem of budget illiteracy is to provide budget literacy education in schools to youth helping them evolve into civic minded adults with the essential knowledge needed for analyzing their government's fiscal policy objectives and measures and the confidence and sense of social responsibility to participate in the oversight of public resources This book elaborates on approaches learning outcomes pedagogical strategies and assessment approaches for budget literacy education and presents lessons that are relevant for the development improvement or scaling up of budget literacy initiatives

Popular Music, Cultural Politics and Music Education in China Wai-Chung Ho, 2016-12-08 While attention has been paid to various aspects of music education in China to date no single publication has systematically addressed the complex interplay of sociopolitical transformations underlying the development of popular music and music education in the multilevel culture of China Before the implementation of the new curriculum reforms in China at the beginning of the twenty first century there was neither Chinese nor Western popular music in textbook materials Popular culture had long been prohibited in school music education by China's strong revolutionary orientation which feared spiritual pollution by Western cultures However since the early twenty first century education reform has attempted to help students deal with experiences in their daily lives and has officially included learning the canon of popular music in the music curriculum In relation to this topic this book analyses how social transformation and cultural politics have affected community relations and the transmission of popular music through school music education Ho presents music and music education as sociopolitical constructions of nationalism and globalization Moreover how popular music is received in national and global contexts and how it affects the construction of social and musical meanings in school music education as well as the reformation of music education in mainland China is discussed Based on the perspectives of school music teachers and students the findings of the empirical studies in this book address the power and potential use of popular music in school music education as a producer and reproducer of cultural politics in the music curriculum in the mainland

Lamke, Herbert M. Silvey, 1958 Global vs. Local Marketing. An Analysis of the Usefulness for Global Companies

Valea Adams, 2017-01-04 Seminar paper from the year 2016 in the subject Business economics Offline Marketing and Online Marketing grade 1.0 The FOM University of Applied Sciences Hamburg language English abstract This seminar paper evaluates the dimensions of standardized global marketing and local marketing for global companies by starting with a short insight into globalization and global firms in general followed by an illustration of the global local dilemma that forces a decision on the choice between selling the same product across all boundaries and the implementation of local marketing strategies in order to respond to regional differences The term paper continues with an explanation of local and standardized global marketing exemplified by the global players McDonald's and Apple and concludes with a comparison of both approaches The debate on standardization and adaptation in marketing has sparked a debate for decades Dating back to Levitt who is one of the leading advocates of the standardization approach in marketing many other researchers followed Levitt's argument about the homogenization of consumer markets However critics of this thesis argue that just a few products can be easily standardized in a global manner Kotler argues that national marketing can't be simply extended to an international level as consumer behavior significantly varies depending on the country Today virtually every major company is forced to compete in the global market And global marketers need to navigate through diverse cultures that go along with unpredicted rules and differences Companies that are taking their business global and aim to successfully sell their products and services in foreign markets face many challenges The most challenging decision in this progress is the degree of standardization or adaptation in the firm's operations Many companies have understood the importance of global activities
