the Developing World Astonishingly however there have been very few studies and no books on NGO field workers This study of field workers in Bangladesh provides excellent insights into this neglected field Bangladesh is an excellent example as since independence in 1971 it has been a donor dependent country both financially and functionally and since the 1980s has concentrated this funding towards NGOs rather than to the state The book shows how field workers are seen simply as implementers carrying out directions given by their superiors and never being consulted on how best to achieve their goals The book examines four types of NGOs international national regional and small local in a number of sample locations It compares the benefits and facilities provided by each NGO to their field workers then explores the socio economic background of both field workers and their mid level managers and examines the interactions between these two groups and between field workers and their clients It also looks at the field workers personal and professional lives and problems and details their opinions on their NGO s activities and policies and on development The findings show that NGO managers and donors lack knowledge of the realities in the field and do not realise how certain policies such as their positive discrimination of women can have negative results It proposes that NGO field workers should be more active in policy making and puts forward several recommendations for changes in the management and structure of future NGOs
