

Natural Selection Lab

Procedure: Using directional selection you are to evolve an animal through 4 evolutionary steps. It is important for you to remember that evolution is an ongoing process not something that starts and stops.

Data: Guidelines for each evolution:

1. State the selection pressure, which forced the evolution.
2. Diagram each of the steps as shown in the example below.
3. Be creative, but somewhat realistic.
4. Drawings: #1 colored drawing—very detailed in its habitat-Full Page BEFORE
#2-5 non-colored sketch and graph (shown as below)-Half page
#6 colored drawing—very detailed in its habitat-Full Page AFTER
5. Take a photo of each page of your drawings (4 pages total) and attach them to this assignment. Also attach a Doc with your answers to the questions and your conclusion.

Example: You will have 4 selection pressures like what you see below

Selection Pressure: A new species of fly migrates in that carries a disease lethal to cow's. Those cows born with slightly longer tails are able to swat the fly's away which allows fewer of them to become diseased. Over time cow's with longer tails reproduce more often and the cow population gets longer tails.
