Delayed installation, adjustment, operation, service, maintenance, or use may cause explosion, fire, electrical shock, or other conditions which may cause death, personal injury or property damage. Consult a qualified installer, service agency or your distributor or dealer for information on installation. The qualified installer or agency must use factory-authorized tools or accessories when installing this product. Refer to the individual instructions included with the tool, or accessories when installing.

Follow all safety rules. Wear safety glasses, protective clothing and work gloves. There is a fire extinguisher available. Read the instructions thoroughly and follow all warnings and cautions printed on literature and attached to the unit. Contact your building codes and the nearest station of the National Electrical Code (NEC) before use.

In Canada, sales to the general public of the Canadian Electrical Code (CEC) are:

Background safety information: When you see this symbol, , on the label and its attachments or manuals, be alert to the potential for personal injury. Understand the signal words: DANGER, WARNING, CAUTION, and EXPLOSION. These words are used with the safety-alert symbol . DANGER indicates the most serious hazards, which will result in serious personal injury or death. WARNING indicates hazards, which will result in personal injury or death. CAUTION is used to identify possible situations, which may result in serious personal injury or property and property damage. EXPLOSION is used to highlight explosions, which will result in substantial destruction, equipment or personal injury.

RESEARCH DESIGN

The Safety System consists of several intelligent communicating components which include the Safety Control (or Safe Switch), variable speed drives or VFDs, 3-phase AC or DC and Safety Relayed Motors, which continuously communicate with each other in a two-way connection called the ASSTO bus. Commands, operating conditions, and defect data are passed continuously between components over the ASSTO bus. The result is a new level of machine protection and control.

All English speakers in the world are thought to speak with a single set of parameters (lexicons, affixation, and so forth). They support connected sentences, noun phrases, noun clauses, noun infinitives, and so on (syntax). English is a language (morphosyntax), not a connected language (morphosyntax).

[illegible]

All system components are connected through the well-mounted Industry Ethernet, which requires the structural framework and provides the framework with a single well-mount for all devices at the system.
