Class 10 Sindh Board

Jayantha Perera

Class 10 Sindh Board:

Education, Inclusion, Pluralism and United Nations Sustainable Development Goals Sher Rahmat Khan, 2024-12-23 This book offers a compelling analysis of education's promise to achieve inclusive pluralistic and sustainable societies. These globally shared challenges are examined through a detailed analysis of the cultural politics of education in postcolonial Pakistan. The analysis provides a window into the ways that the intergenerational traumas of colonialism, neocolonialism, globalisation and forms of extremism continue to present significant challenges for postcolonial Pakistan. Drawing on postcolonial theories and curriculum theory, the author develops a critical discourse analysis of the cultural politics that shapes education in Pakistan. The analysis identifies key elements of this cultural politics such as religious and cultural dynamics, geopolitical challenges, the need to promote unity and cohesion, employing history for nation building and gender relations, and the ways in which these elements intersect to shape the possibilities of delivering on the promise of inclusion, pluralism and sustainable development.

The Subtle Subversion, 2005 World Yearbook of Education 2011 Lyn Yates, Madeleine Grumet, 2011-02-01 How do curriculum conceptions of knowledge and the schooling experiences of young people engage the great issues of this tumultuous time? Curriculum is always influenced by the events that shape our world, but when testing and benchmarking preoccupy us, we can forget the world that is both the foundation and the object of curriculum. This edited volume brings together international contributors to analyze and reflect on the way the events of the last decade have influenced the curriculum in their countries. As they address nationalism in the face of economic globalisation, the international financial crisis, immigration and the culture of diaspora, they ask how national loyalties are balanced with international relationships and interests. They ask how the rights of women and of ethnic and racial groups are represented. They ask what has changed about history and civics post 9/11 and they ask how countries that have experienced profound political and economic changes have addressed them in curriculum. These interactions and changes are a subject of particular interest for an international yearbook in that they are almost always permeated by global movements and influenced by multinational bodies and practices. And as these essays show, in curriculum global and international issues are explicitly or implicitly also about local and national interests and about how citizens engage their rights and responsibilities. This volume brings together a new approach to perspectives on curriculum today and a new collection of insights into the changes from different parts of the world which discuss: How is the world represented in curriculum? How do responses to world events shape the stories we tell students about who they are and can be? This book will be of great benefit to educational researchers and policy makers as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students.

S. Mohammad Reza, 1990      Irrigation Development and Agrarian Change Jayantha Perera, 2003 This study examines irrigation development and agrarian change in the lower Indus basin during the past 150 years Sindh one of the constituent provinces of Pakistan is located in the lower Indus river basin The British captured Sindh in 1843 from local Mirs rulers and governed it for the next hundred years Its annexation to the Bombay Presidency of British India triggered a process of irrigation infrastructure and institutional development that has continued after it became a constituent province of Islamic Republic of Pakistan in 1947 The main argument of this study is that during the last 150 years agrarian changes in Sindh have been triggered by irrigation infrastructure development initiated and supported by the state It further argues that although large scale irrigation facilities have expanded the irrigated land area and improved agricultural production during this period the relations of production in agriculture have continued without much change P 27 28      Islamisation of Pakistani Social Studies Textbooks Yvette Claire Rosser, 2003 Textbooks often become a part of the political agenda of the state In the case of Pakistani Social Studies textbooks the result has been disastrous Whether it is military or civilian government the content of the textbooks have been consciously manipulated to serve the interests of the ruling power This has come at the cost of correct information and reasoned analyses Rosser in this study makes an interesting probe into the Islamic nation building project in Pakistan through the medium of education
