Rethinking Social Movements Jeff Goodwin, James M. Jasper, 2004 This landmark volume brings together some of the titans of social movement theory in a grand reassessment of its status For some time the field has been divided between a dominant structural approach and a cultural or constructivist tradition The gaps and misunderstandings between the two sides as well as the efforts to bridge them closely parallel those in the social sciences at large This book aims to further the dialogue between these two distinct approaches to social movements and to show the broader implications for social science as a whole as it struggles with issues including culture emotion and agency Visit our website for sample chapters

Social Stratification and Social Movements Sabrina Zajack, Sebastian Haunss, 2019-11-22 This volume addresses the contested relationship between social stratification and social movements in three different ways First the authors address the relationship between social stratification and the emergence of protest mobilization Second the texts look at social stratification and social positions to explain variations in political orientations as well as differing aims and interests of protestors Finally the volume focuses on the socio structural composition of protestors Social Stratification and Social Movements takes up recent attempts to reconnect research on these two fields Instead of calling for a return of a class perspective or abandoning the classical social movement research agenda it introduces a multi dimensional perspective on stratification and social movements and broadens the view by extending the empirical analysis beyond Europe Social Movements and Collective Action Bob Edwards, Marieke Van Willigen, Tisha Yelverton, 2003 Social Movements and Organized Labour Jürgen Grote, Claudius Wagemann, 2018-08-06 This book is about the building of alliances and about joint activities between two groups of social movement actors ascribed increasing relevance for the functioning and the eventual amendment of democratic capitalism The chapters provide a well balanced mix of theoretical and empirical accounts on the political social and economic catalysts behind the changing motives finding expression in a multitude of novel types of joint collective action and inter organizational alliances The contributors to this volume go beyond attempting to place unions movements crises precariousness protests and coalitions at the centre of the research Instead they focus on actors who themselves transcend clear cut social camps They look at the values and motives underlying collective action by both types of actors as much as at their structural and strategic properties and inter organizational relations and networks This creates a fresh genuine and historically valid account of the incompatibilities and the commonalities of movements and unions and of prospects for inter organizational learning
