PESTICIDES IN FOOD

[L675]

Key Vocabulary

behavior	the way someone, including humans, acts in certain situations
adapt	change to fit or survive in a new setting or situation
immunity	the ability of an organism to fight off an illness
produce	fruits and vegetables
minerals	solid, inorganic materials such as salt or sulfur that usually form under the ground and do not come from living things

Pesticides are chemicals made to kill insects and other pests. Farmers use them in order to protect their crops from damage. Without pesticides, farmers wouldn't be able to grow as much food as they do. However, pesticides aren't only toxic to insects. They cause problems for people, too. They've found evidence of these foods without insecticides, fruits and vegetables.

ten years or less. As a result, pesticide companies constantly make new chemicals to replace old ones that no longer work. Scientists don't keep up in understanding how pesticides affect health. By the time they study one chemical, a new one has replaced it.

One thing scientists do know is that in large enough amounts, pesticides can make people very sick. Some studies show that pesticides may cause issues with immunity. Your immunity keeps people less able to fight off illness. Pesticides may also lead to diseases that affect the brain. Some chemicals in pesticides can cause cancer. Both farmers and farm workers who work crops are at high risk for these health problems. People who live near farms are also at risk.

Babies with high amounts of pesticides in their bodies are more likely to get sick and have trouble paying attention. They may also develop asthma. This condition makes it harder to breathe. Because children are still growing, they have a higher risk of being affected by pesticides than adults.

It's unlikely that large farms will stop using pesticides anytime soon.

However, people can take steps to protect themselves from these harmful chemicals.

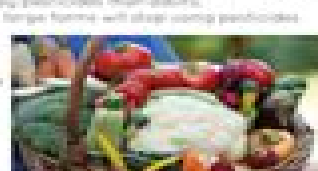

One solution is to wash produce carefully. Water is usually enough to clean fruits and vegetables. However, some foods with tough skins, like apples, need to be peeled. Another solution is to eat organic produce. Organic produce is grown without pesticides. However, organic produce is often more expensive than regular produce.

Another solution is to eat a variety of fruits and vegetables. This helps ensure you get a wide range of nutrients. Eating a variety of fruits and vegetables every day is important for your health.
