

1. Which of the following is the BEST performance criterion for evaluating the adequacy of an organization's security awareness training?
- A. Senior management is aware of critical information assets and demonstrates an adequate concern for their protection.
 - B. Job descriptions contain clear statements of accountability for information security
 - C. In accordance with the degree of risk and business impact, there is adequate funding for security efforts.
 - D. No actual incidents have occurred that have caused a loss or a public embarrassment.

Answer : B

Inclusion in job descriptions of security responsibilities is a form of security training and helps ensure that staff and management are aware of their roles with respect to information security. The other three choices are not criterion for evaluating security awareness training. Awareness is a criterion for evaluating the importance that senior management attaches to information assets and their protection. Funding is a criterion that aids in evaluating whether security vulnerabilities are being addressed, while the number of incidents that have occurred is a criterion for evaluating the adequacy of the risk management program.

2. The PRIMARY objective of an audit of IT security policies is to ensure that:
- A. they are distributed and available to all staff.
 - B. security and control policies support business and IT objectives
 - C. there is a published organizational chart with functional descriptions.
 - D. duties are appropriately segregated.

Answer : B

Business orientation should be the main theme in implementing security. Hence, an IS audit of IT security policies should primarily focus on whether the IT and related security and control policies support business and IT objectives. Reviewing whether policies are available to all is an objective, but distribution does not ensure compliance. Availability of organizational charts with functional descriptions and segregation of duties might be included in the review, but are not the primary objective of an audit of security policies.

3. In the context of effective information security governance, the primary objective of value delivery is to:
- A. optimize security investments in support of business objectives.
 - B. implement a standard set of security practices.
 - C. institute a standards-based solution.
 - D. implement a continuous improvement culture.

Answer : A

In the context of effective information security governance, value delivery is implemented to ensure optimization of security investments in support of business objectives. The tools and techniques for implementing value delivery include implementation of a standard set of security practices, institutionalization and commoditization of standards-based solutions, and implementation of a continuous improvement culture considering security as a process, not an event.

4. A team conducting a risk analysis is having difficulty projecting the financial losses that could result from a risk. To evaluate the potential losses, the team should:
- A. compute the amortization of the related assets.
 - B. calculate a return on investment (ROI).
