Test name: chapter 8

1) TRUE

Controlling can raise the level of innovation in an organization. Successful innovation takes place when managers create an organizational setting in which employees feel empowered to be creative and in which authority is decentralized to employees so they feel free to experiment and take control of their work activities.

2) TRUE

Managers use feed forward control to anticipate problems before they arise so problems do not occur later during the conversion process.

3) FALSE

The first step in the control process is to establish the standards of performance, goals, or targets against which performance is to be evaluated.

4) FALSE

Standard operating procedures are mechanisms for bureaucratic and behavior control.

5) TRUE

Activity ratios show how well managers are creating value from organizational assets. Inventory turnover ratio is an example of the activity ratio that measures how efficiently managers are turning inventory over so excess inventory is not carried.

6) TRUE

Output control is used at every level of the organization, and it is vital that the goals set at each level harmonize with the goals set at other levels so managers and other employees throughout the organization work together to attain the corporate goals that top managers have set.

7) TRUE

Bureaucratic control is control by means of a comprehensive system of rules and standard operating procedures (SOPs) that shapes and regulates the behavior of divisions, functions, and individuals.

8) FALSE

Organizational culture is not an externally imposed system of constraints, such as direct supervision or rules and procedures. Rather, employees internalize organizational values and norms and then let these values and norms guide their decisions and actions.
