CHEMICAL REACTIONS AND EQUATIONS

Introduction

Chemical reactions - a chemical reaction is defined as a process in which one substance with some properties are broken down into reacting substances by rearrangement of atoms.

For eg., rusting of iron, digestion of food, photosynthesis.

A Chemical Reaction is Characterised By-

- Change in physical state
- Change in colour
- Change in temperature
- Evolution of gas
- Evolution of precipitate

What is a chemical equation?

Chemical reactions are represented by chemical equations. Chemical equations are symbolic representations of a chemical reaction with the help of symbols and formulas of the involved substances. The substances that undergo chemical change in the reaction are called reactants. The new substances formed during the reaction is the product. In a chemical equation, reactants are written on the left while products on the right hand side, separated by an arrow that denotes the product. The direction of the arrowhead shows the direction of chemical reaction.
