education public health or infrastructure This in turn has led to an unparalleled dependence on oil There is no oil exporting country in the world so dependent on this one commodity for its revenue Medani 2013 28 Oil is also what originally brought China to Sudan and then South Sudan The economical dimension can't be separated from the political here in South Sudan we find a striking coexistence of actual political and aspirational economic relations Large 2014 41 This interwovenness of political and economic interests has proven to be an increasing challenge for China's traditional policy of non interference by itself In the last few years South Sudan has been the site of an evolving experimental and more proactive Chinese political and security engagement
