Handbook of Research on Innovative Database Query Processing Techniques Yan, Li,2015-09-25 Research and development surrounding the use of data queries is receiving increased attention from computer scientists and data specialists alike Through the use of query technology large volumes of data in databases can be retrieved and information systems built based on databases can support problem solving and decision making across industries The Handbook of Research on Innovative Database Query Processing Techniques focuses on the growing topic of database query processing methods technologies and applications Aimed at providing an all inclusive reference source of technologies and practices in advanced database query systems this book investigates various techniques including database and XML queries spatiotemporal data queries big data queries metadata queries and applications of database query systems This comprehensive handbook is a necessary resource for students IT professionals data analysts and academicians interested in uncovering the latest methods for using queries as a means to extract information from databases This all inclusive handbook includes the latest research on topics pertaining to information retrieval data extraction data management design and development of database queries and database and XM queries Clinical Applications of Synthetic MRI of the Brain Ida Blystad,2017-11-16 Magnetic Resonance Imaging MRI has a high soft tissue contrast with a high sensitivity for detecting pathological changes in the brain Conventional MRI is a time consuming method with multiple scans that relies on the visual assessment of the neuroradiologist Synthetic MRI uses one scan to produce conventional images but also quantitative maps based on relaxometry that can be used to quantitatively analyse tissue properties and pathological changes The studies presented here apply the use of synthetic MRI of the brain in different clinical settings In the first study synthetic MR images were compared to conventional MR images in 22 patients The contrast the contrast to noise ratio and the diagnostic quality were assessed Image quality was perceived to be inferior in the synthetic images but synthetic images agreed with the clinical diagnoses to the same extent as the conventional images Patients with early multiple sclerosis were analysed in the second study In patients with multiple sclerosis contrast enhancing white matter lesions are a sign of active disease and can indicate a need for a change in therapy Gadolinium based contrast agents are used to detect active lesions but concern has been raised regarding the long term effects of repeated use of gadolinium In this study relaxometry was used to evaluate whether pre contrast injection tissue relaxation rates and proton density can identify active lesions without gadolinium The findings suggest that active lesions often have relaxation times and proton density that differ from non enhancing lesions but with some overlap This makes it difficult to replace gadolinium based contrast agent injection with synthetic MRI in the monitoring of MS patients Malignant gliomas are primary brain tumours with contrast enhancement due to a defective blood brain barrier However they also grow in an infiltrative diffuse manner making it difficult to clearly delineate them from surrounding normal brain tissue in the diagnostic workup at surgery and during follow up The contrast enhancing part of the tumour is easily visualised but not the diffuse infiltration In studies three and four synthetic MRI was used to analyse the peritumoral area of malignant gliomas and revealed quantitative findings regarding peritumoral relaxation changes and non visible contrast enhancement suggestive of non visible infiltrative tumour growth In conclusion synthetic MRI provides quantitative information about the brain tissue and this could improve the diagnosis and treatment for patients
