Document Based Questions in World History

Philip Roden, 2013 Teaching Recent Global History Diana B. Turk, Laura J. Dull, Robert Cohen, Michael R. Stoll, 2014-03-05

Teaching Recent Global History explores innovative ways to teach world history beginning with the early 20th century. The authors' unique approach unites historians, social studies teachers, and educational curriculum specialists to offer historically rich, pedagogically innovative, and academically rigorous lessons that help students connect with and deeply understand key events and trends in recent global history. Highlighting the best scholarship for each major continent, the text explores the ways that this scholarship can be adapted by teachers in the classroom in order to engage and inspire students. Each of the eight main chapters highlights a particularly important event or theme, which is then complemented by a detailed discussion of a particular methodological approach. Key features include:

- An overarching narrative that helps readers address historical arguments.
- Relevant primary documents or artifacts plus a discussion of a particular historical method well suited to teaching about them.
- Lesson plans suitable for both middle and secondary level classrooms.
- Document-based questions and short bibliographies for further research on the topic.

This invaluable book is ideal for any aspiring or current teacher who wants to think critically about how to teach world history and make historical discussions come alive for students. Teaching and

Using Document-Based Questions for Middle School Edward P. O'Connor, 2003-11-14

This guide focuses on using Document Based Questions (DBQs) to challenge students to interpret primary sources such as letters, diaries, speeches, and other historical records. Challenge your students to interpret primary sources from American History such as letters, diaries, speeches, and other historical records. Students learn to analyze a wide variety of visual and graphic stimuli such as paintings, photographs, charts, and graphs using Document Based Questions. Containing sixteen different themes selected from major units that are covered in American History, DBQs help to utilize many of the skills stressed by social studies teachers and are an excellent tool for assessing student progress. The activities are geared primarily toward middle school students, grades 6-8, but can be adapted easily for use by secondary students. Teaching in a Globally-Connected World Ervin F.

Sparapani, Pamela L. Ross McClain, 2016-07-29

This book examines the current social, political, economic, and religious climate of the world, makes projections for the future, and then makes suggestions for what the contributors believe educators need to think about in order to adequately prepare young people to successfully navigate that future. We live in a globally connected world, and young people as they move into the future need to be prepared to live in that future. Schools and teachers tend to focus on the present, which is okay; however, schools and teachers must decide what is important to know in the present in order for young people to be successful in the future. The responsibility of education today must be to prepare learners to live in an unknown future that is global and not be so focused on an uncertain present. Writing Instruction That Works

Arthur N. Applebee, Judith A. Langer, 2015-04-25
