Summary

- The city centre has faced some challenges in recent times, visible in foot traffic and retail spending data.
- It remains a highly productive location, and the level of private sector investment reflects confidence in the city centre's future.
- Supportive long-term tailwinds include population growth, the shift towards services, and improved access enabled by the City Rail Link.

Advances in Urban Planning in Developing Nations Arnab Jana, 2021-05-26. This book studies the increasing use of data analytics and technology in urban planning and development in developing nations. It examines the application of urban science and engineering in different sectors of urban planning and looks at the challenges involved in planning 21st century cities, especially in India. The volume analyzes various key themes such as auditory visual sensing, network analysis and spatial planning and decision making and management in the planning process. It also studies the application of big data, geographic information systems and information and communications technology in urban planning. Finally, it provides data-driven approaches toward holistic and optimal urban solutions for challenges in transportation planning, housing and conservation of vulnerable urban zones like coastal areas and open spaces. Well supplemented with rigorous case studies, the book will be of interest to scholars and researchers of architecture, architectural and urban planning and urban analytics. It will also be useful for professionals involved in smart city planning, planning authorities, urban scientists and municipal and local bodies.
