Civic Education and the Future of American Citizenship Elizabeth Kaufer Busch, Jonathan W. White, 2012-11-02 The Founders of this nation believed that the government they were creating required a civically educated populace Such an education aimed to cultivate enlightened informed and vigilant citizens who could perpetuate and improve the nation Unfortunately America s contemporary youth seem to lack adequate opportunities if not also the ability or will to critically examine the foundations of this nation An even larger problem is an increasing ambivalence toward education in general Stepping into this void is a diverse group of educators intellectuals and businesspeople brought together in Civic Education and the Future of American Citizenship to grapple with the issue of civic illiteracy and its consequences The essays edited by Elizabeth Kaufer Busch and Jonathan W White force us to not only reexamine the goals of civic education in America but also those of liberal education more broadly

Americans in their democracy New technologies and new innovations in civic education have laid the foundation for a revitalized American civic ecology With Civic Education in the Twenty First Century we call for the United States to make these practices less isolated and more common throughout the country The volume is broken into three major sections First there are four chapters exploring the history and philosophical debates about civic education particularly with respect to its role in America s educational institutions Then the second section provides seven groundbreaking inquiries into how politicians and political institutions can promote civic education and engagement through their routine operations As some examples this section explores how politicians through campaigns and judiciaries through community programs enhance civic knowledge and encourage civic engagement This section also explores how new technologies like the Internet and social media are increasingly used by government institutions and other entities to encourage a more politically informed and engaged citizenry Finally the third section contains six chapters that explore programs and practices in higher education that are enhancing civic education engagement and our knowledge of them From the virtual civics campus of Fort Hayes State to citizens academies throughout the country this section shows the possibilities for schools today to once again be civics actors and promoters
