Serious Monologues

Things I Know To Be True by Andrew Scott

Besides I hang up, I get out of the car, I can hardly breathe. I'm standing on the side of the highway, I don't know whether to turn back or keep going. I'm somewhere between who I was and who I'm going to be. I want my dad. I want my sisters and brother. I want my Mum. I want my Mum. But I can't think of her, of them, not now, because if I do my chest will explode. I feel like I'm literally going to fall to pieces. That my arms are going to drop off and then my legs and my head. And so to stop myself coming apart I make a list of the things I know to be true. I know that having your heart broken by a boy from Spain won't be the worst thing that happens to you. I know that things can't remain the same, no matter how much you want them to. I know that people aren't perfect. Even the people you love. Especially the people you love. And I know that love is not enough to save them. I know what grief tastes like. It's bitter. I know what it sounds like. It's loud. And I know that on the day my mother died my childhood finally ended. I know that summer turns to autumn and that autumn becomes winter and that winter turns to spring and spring back to summer. And it goes on. Life. It goes on.

Lungs by Duncan Macmillan

Wesley: Look. Alright. Listen, you gotta understand, alright, I'm thinking out loud here so please just let me talk, just let me think it through out loud. Please, alright, don't just jump in if I say something wrong or stupid, just let me think, okay. Because I've always wanted – alright – and I'm talking in the abstract, I've always wanted, I've always had a sense or an idea of myself, always defined myself, okay, as a person who would. That my purpose in life, that my function in this planet would be to. And not that I ever thought about it like that. It's only now because you're asking – or not asking but mentioning. Starting the conversation. Only because of that, that I'm now even thinking about it. But it's always been sort of a given for me, an assumption ever since I was a little girl playing with dolls. I mean long, long before I met you. It's never been what I guess it should be which is a g-e-r-m-a-n extension of an expression of, you know, fucking love or whatever. A coming together of two people. It's always been this, alright – and this will sound stupid and naive. But it's always been an image, I guess, of myself with a bushy and glowing in that weirdly – or pinkish or a pale or a dot, or a mole-like above it or clinging to it. Reading Beatrix Potter or Dr Seuss. I don't care, never cared about it being a boy or a girl, just small and soft and adorable and with that willy head and the tiny socks and giggles and, yes, woot woot. It's all part of it. Looking after it. Caring for it. That's, I think, the impulse. And there's always been a father in the picture but sort of a towering background generic man. I'm sorry, it's just this picture of my life I've always had since I was able to think and I've never questioned it. Never.

Over the Door by Tom Kempinski

Stephanie: Well... music? Music. Music, Dr Feldmann, is the purest expression of humanity that there is. Because, you see, it's magic: but real magic, true mystery, not trickery. You can say it is sound, as
