

the flower

A flower never questions where it is left to grow. It simply does so without question. No matter how harsh the conditions, how difficult the circumstances, the flower blooms where it was planted. It does what it can with the materials it is given, and always turns its face towards the sun, leaving the shadows behind. Never does it wish for better, or doubt its ability to grow. It just works hard to achieve what it set out to do. That is how a person should be—don't spend your time wallowing in regret, just push forward. It's the only way you can achieve.

What you set out to do.
