

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a training group (n = 20) or a control group (n = 20). The training group performed a 12-week program of aerobic and resistance training. The control group did not exercise. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The primary outcome was the change in HRQL. The secondary outcomes were the change in physical fitness and the change in body composition. The results showed that the training group had a significant improvement in HRQL, physical fitness, and body composition compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and HRQL of sedentary, middle-aged men.
