Teaching Social Studies S. G. Grant, John Lee, Kathy Swan, 2017-05-01 Teaching Social Studies A Methods Book for Methods Teachers features tasks designed to take preservice teachers deep into schools in general and into social studies education in particular Organized around Joseph Schwab's commonplaces of education and recognizing the role of inquiry as a preferred pedagogy in social studies the book offers a series of short chapters that highlight learners and learning subject matter teachers and teaching and school context The 42 chapters describe tasks that the authors assign to their methods students as either in class or as outside of class assignments The components of each chapter are Summary of the task Description of the exercise i.e. what students are to do the necessary resources the timeframe for completion grading criteria Description of how students respond to the activity Description of how the task fits into the overall course List of readings and references Appendix that supplements the task description

Cognitive and Instructional Processes in History and the Social Sciences Mario Carretero, James F. Voss, 2012-12-06 This volume is a direct result of an international conference that brought together a number of scholars from Europe and the United States to discuss their ideas and research about cognitive and instructional processes in history and the social sciences As such it fills a major gap in the study of how people learn and reason in the context of particular subject matter domains and how instruction can be improved in order to facilitate better learning and reasoning Previous cognitive work on subject matter learning has been focused primarily upon mathematics and physics the present effort provides the first such venture examining the history and social science domains from a cognitive perspective The different sections of the book cover topics related to comprehension learning and instruction of history and the social sciences including the development of some social sciences concepts the teaching of social sciences problems and questions arising from this cognitive perspective of learning the comprehension and learning from historical texts how people and students understand historical causality and provide explanations of historical events and the deduction processes involved in reasoning about social sciences contents This volume will be useful for primary and secondary school teachers and for cognitive and instructional researchers interested in problem solving and reasoning text comprehension domain specific knowledge acquisition and concept development

Reasons for Writing Joan F. Gilliland, Joan T. Mead, 1992 Resources in Education, 1985-06 Logical Argument in the Research Paper Russ Ward, 1997 Logical Argument in the Research Paper operates on the premise that collegiate level writing when cast in its most significant and sophisticated form is argumentative Students are shown how writers examine a potential topic establish a stance upon that topic defend the stance avoid reasoning and ethical errors and in general say something meaningful about the topic It also includes instruction about finding sources gathering information from them and correctly documenting them However the emphasis remains on how effective writers evaluate sources think about the information they discover prepare a fair and informed argument rethink and revise the argument and finally present an argument in its completed form Logical

Argument in the Research Paper will help students learn some of the reasoning processes that all writers use when composing the academic argument
