With increasingly active multi-level strategy oriented activities, it is expected that the national governments that are actively used for business purposes will continue to expand their responsibilities. The internationalization process beyond pure economic value generation is gradually enhanced by the expansion of the information and knowledge base. The strategy for capitalizing the growing knowledge and information resources is becoming more active and more active.

The authors stated that the plant has an extremely high degree of resistance to several major diseases. These are demonstrated by the complete resistance of plants to powdery mildew, downy mildew, late blight, and rust. The results are summarized in the table on page 10. The authors stated that the plant is resistant to several other diseases, but that the results are not yet published. The authors stated that the plant is resistant to several other diseases, but that the results are not yet published.

Abstract—The authors describe the results of a research project that examined the relationship between the use of a computer-based decision support system (DSS) and the performance of a task. The results show that the use of a DSS can improve performance, but only if the user is trained in its use. The authors also discuss the implications of these findings for the design of DSSs and for the training of users.

For the information generated by the control system, there are various possibilities that have been developed for providing information to the operator. These should meet the demands to ensure the most effective communication.
